FOR THE TOILET

There is no more useful or elegant ar ticle than Ayer's Hair Vigor-the most popular and economical hair-dressing in the market. It causes the hair to grow abundantly and retain the beauty and texture of youth; prevents baldness, heals troublesome humors of the scalp and keeps it clean, cool, and healthy. Both ladies and gentlemen everywhere prefer Ayer's Hair Vigor to any other dressing for the hair. Mrs. Lydia · O.
E. Pittswrites: "I Ask For have used Hair Viger for some time, and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and falling hair, so that I was rapidly becoming baid; but since using the Vigor, my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor to any one suf-fering from dandruff or loss of hair."

The palate is almost tickled with Scott's Emulsion of codliver oil. The stomach knows nothing about it-it does not trouble you there. You feel it first in the strength, it brings; it shows in the color of cheek and smoothing out of wrinkles.

It was a beautiful thing to do, to cover the odious taste of cod-liver oil, evade the tax on the stomach, and take health by surprise.

The Inventor of Rough on Rats-A Mor gantown Boy Who Has Become a Mil

forgantown New Dominion. Who is it that has hot heard of "Rough on Rats?" Not only to students of flaring inscriptions on barns, dead walls, fences and so on is this name a familiar one, but its use is almost universal by all classes and conditions who have vermin to trouble and to exterminate. There is hardly a hum let on the civilized globe where this known specific of the "Norway" cure is not sold in large quantities." In Morgantown people have used it, and would occasionally look at the wrapper, perhaps, and note indifferently that the famous eradicator was prepared at the factory of E. S. Wells, Jersey City, N. J.

N. J.

But fewer have connected this man with the "Eph" Wells, who went to school and played truant with many of the boys many long years ago, but in reading this there are doubtless many who will exclaim, "Why, it ain't our old Eph, is it?"

Well, it just is, and he is now probably as wealthy as any of the numerous ones who have left their native Monongalia home to battle with the world and become victors. Mr. Wells is one of these, and his career, sketched briefly, is interesting, and shows his guiding star to success to have been advertising judiciously.

Ephraim and Moses Wells, both now-

Ephraim and Moses Wells, both now

Ephraim and Moses Wells, both now deceased, were residents of Morgantown from their infancy, until Ephraim moved to Uniontown, Pa.; when his son, Ephraim jr, was six years old. Moses lived till his death, which occurred some twelve years ago, in the house now occupied by his widow and son, Edward, in the northern extension, but formerly its location was described as being on the Ice's ferry pike.

Young Eph was 16 years old when the family moved to Jersey City, having remained in Uniontown but a short time. The boy secured a position in a drug store in New York, and by correct habits and pluck, a good combination and worthy of emulation, he had enough money in a few years to go into the drug business on his own account, and he opened up a store in Jersey City. Ephriam, sr., died in a few years thereafter.

Mr. Wells kept in the drug business

Mr. Wells kept in the drug business for many years without meeting with any marked financial success, making a good living, but not a great deal more. He for years looked for an opportunity to make money more rapidly. He seemed to hanker for quick action. He got tired of arising at all hours of the night to fill ten-cent prescriptions. He had to work metry bard. work pretty hard.

Meantime he had been troubled with rats around his place of business and he prepared a powder which would make them seek water, and then the chemical action would kill them while out of a building. He told some of his neigh-bors about it and sold them big doses for their rats. After a time he was kept busy by people who wanted to buy some of his rat poison. It occurred to him in 1884 that he would get a patent on the stuff. He got it. Then it was the final part of the same intention to go into the manufacture of it on a large scale. He had no money but what was in the drug store, and as the rat poison idea was but experimen-tal, though be knew its good qualities, he didn't want to risk his little all on it no didn't want to risk his little all on it. A New York man of means was afraid to go into it with him, and Mr. Wells is now glad he didn't. He wanted money to advertise. He failed to get it.

Finally he went to the Tribane, Herald, Times and World and stated the case clearly; that he had no money, but he wanted to contract for $1,000 worth of advertising in each one for this nor advertising in each one for this new terror to the filetails; that he would pay them so much every thirty days. He had a good face, his story was be-lieved and the advertising began to appear.

He went home and was soon in bed, but he was kept awake for hours think-ing of a name. Twelve o'clock came, one, two, and he was finally getting into a half unconscious and exhausted state, when he remarked in a sort of conciliatory way, that it "Was pretty rough on rats, whatever it was." He became inspired by his own unthinking words. "Rough on rate," he repeated, "why that's just the name it shall go by." To the failure to find a name may be attributed the happy hit finally made.

He got orders from the start, and at the end of the first mouth he was barely the end of the first month he was barely able to pay off his advertising bills and other expenses. But he renewed the same contracts. At the end of the second month he had more money. By the end of the third he had to hire hands to help compound the stuff. It kept on getting better, and inside of six months "Rough on Rats" was being sold in every state in the union. The drug store was sold out, and in its place stands a large factory where "Rough on Rats" and many other "Roughs," applied 'to various insects and pestilential animals, are made.

Mr. Wells has cleared over St.000,000 by the sale of his patented "Roughs." Of late he has devoted a great deal of his time to flue stock, and his farm near Newark, N. J., has many fine horses in its stables. He was married some years ago in Jersoy City and lives in a luxuriously appointed mansion, with its concomitant surroundings and belonging the some years ago in Jersey City and lives in a luxuriously appointed mansion, with its concomitant surroundings and belongings.
